If appropriate for a specific insurance-only recovery project, DRS billing can also be established at a flat rate of $315 per hour versus the stratified rates shown above.

DRS Expenses

In addition to professional fees set forth above, DRS will also bill monthly for our expenses. As is our standard practice, expenses are comprised of direct expenses, which include reasonable and customary expenses that can be easily traced to the specific engagement such as travel, hotel, meals, and similar charges. When these costs originate with outside vendors, they will be passed on at their cost to DRS and then passed along to the member entity.

Please note that DRS will provide the member entity with consultants that have the specialized knowledge necessary to maximize preparedness and recovery. In some instances, these professionals will not be local to the member entity's site and their project involvement will require travel to the member entity's project site.

Fee Reimbursement

If Claim Preparation or similar coverage exists within entity's insurance policies, the DRS invoices will be submitted to the insurance carrier for recovery as part of the claim. The insurance company will review the DRS invoices just as they review and adjust all elements of the claim.

If your claim involves FEMA, there are additional opportunities to recover our management costs (indirect and direct) associated with eligible FEMA projects. FEMA will review these costs, just as they review all elements of the claim.
